During his long service he issued more than 1. 000 marriage licenses, and united many as a lasting influence in the homes thus founded, for in all the list there is no record of any couple whom Mr. Davis married having been later separated by a decree of divorce. Mr. Davis was actively engaged at his office until about two weeks before his death, although his health had been failing for the past two years. He carried the office duties alone until 1913, when the rapid growth of the city increased his labors to a point where an assistant was imperative. George F. Albee was appointed by the city as assistant city clerk and is now filling the office left vacant by the death of Mr. Davis. In various interests, civic...
