

Paleontology and Geochronology of the Long Beach Core Sites and Monitoring Wells, Long Beach, California (Paperback)

By U S Department of the Interior

Createspace, United States, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 279 x 216 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The U.S. Geological Survey Focus on Quaternary Stratigraphy in Los Angeles (FOQUSLA) project was a cooperative coring program between Federal, State, and local agencies. It was designed to provide a better understanding of earthquake potentials and to develop a stratigraphic model of the western Los Angeles Basin in California. The biostratigraphic, geochronologic, and paleoecologic analyses of eight wells drilled during the FOQUS-LA project are presented. These analyses are based on microfossils (benthic and planktic foraminifers), macrofossils, paleomagnetic stratigraphy, optically stimulated luminescence (OSL), thermoluminescence (TL), radiocarbon dating, and tephrochronology. These analyses also augment the preliminary biostratigraphic, chronostratigraphic, and paleoecologic interpretations of five key wells published by Ponti and others (2007, USGS Open-File Report 2007-1013).
