Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from A Bacteriological Study of Shell, Frozen, and Desiccated Eggs: Made Under Laboratory Conditions at Washington, D. C United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Chemistry, Washington, D. C., March 11, 1912. Sir: I have the honor to transmit for your approval the results of a study made by the bacteriological chemist of this bureau and his assistant of fresh eggs of known quality in the shell, and of frozen and desiccated eggs prepared from different grades of materials and under commercial and laboratory conditions, in Washington, D. C. It is thought that these data will be of special interest and profit to those manufacturing these products, in their endeavors to produce a more acceptable foodstuff, as well as to the bakers, confectioners, etc., by whom they are largely purchased. The eggs examined in this work were purchased either direct from the producers or in the open market and were intended for direct consumption. The data obtained are therefore of additional interest as compared with those secured at the factories where eggs are prepared for preservation, which problem is now being studied in an independent research conducted by this Bureau in collaboration with the Bureau of Animal Industry. I recommend that the manuscript be published as Bulletin 158 of the Bureau of Chemistry. Respectfully, H. W. Wiley, Chief of Bureau. Hon. James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture.
