Bibliogov, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 246 x 189 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.In October 1989, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) selected 61 public housing agencies (PHAs) around the country to participate in Operation Bootstrap, a community-based initiative designed to coordinate housing assistance with employment and training services in order to help low-income families develop careers and skills, secure jobs, and ultimately achieve economic independence. HUD contributed two special allocations of federal rental subsidies known as Section 8 certificates in Fiscal Year 1989 and Fiscal Year 1990, but local housing agencies were responsible for providing the education and job training services, as well as all other support services. Because the Operation Bootstrap Program offered no funding for these services, each housing agency had to reach out to neighboring organizations in its local community to provide all the services needed to help clients develop their skills and secure stable employment.
